COMMENTARY AND OUTLOOK

Investors in the Canadian equity markets were well rewarded in 2016 as the S&P/TSX posted superb results. Overall, Canadian market performance was heavily influenced by extremely positive returns generated in the resource groups. Optimism for the global economic outlook and improving supply and demand fundamentals resulted in almost all of the Commodity Research Bureau (CRB) commodities constituents posting positive returns for the first time in six years. This translated into significant advances for many of the stocks in these groups and their associated gains dominated overall market returns. Since CGI is constructed and managed to provide investors with a broadly comprehensive and diversified exposure to the Canadian equity markets, its impressive NAV return of 18.2% lagged relative to the 21.1% performance of the benchmark S&P/TSX in 2016. However, as at March 31, 2017 CGI is outperforming the S&P/TSX for the year with a 3.8% return compared to 2.4% for the benchmark.

CGI capitalized on some of the opportunities arising from the upswing in the resource group last year. Base metal exposure was added to the portfolio early in the year with excellent returns experienced in First Quantum Minerals Ltd and Hudbay Minerals Inc. and a position in Lundin Mining Corporation was more recently added in the fourth quarter of 2016 and these base metal stocks have continued to perform well in 2017. Overall, CGI remains overweight the Materials sector. New positions in Parex Resources, Vermillion Energy Inc. and Secure Energy Services Inc. were established in 2016 in the Energy sector. CGI's current positioning in the group is slightly underweight as the sector has struggled so far this year. Forest product equities have shown good performance but concerns of fallout from the Softwood Lumber Agreement negotiations have yet to be determined and so Nordbord Inc. remains CGI's lone exposure to the group.

For the strong 2016 rally to be supported going forward, positive and tangible data points need to be generated in 2017 to support, reinforce and potentially build onto expectations for future growth. Although substantial economic unknowns remain, this uncertainty has not yet caused investors to pull back on their desire to push stocks higher. However, it seems prudent to take a wait-and-see approach near-term until there is greater clarity on some of the issues that have been debated as part of the new USA presidency's agenda and so CGI has remained relatively inactive so far this year. Volatility may increase during this upcoming period but we remain cautiously optimistic that the global economy is steadily improving and holds promise of further growth. The Canadian market could see additional advances in its resource-related areas if this situation arises and, depending on trade developments, may also be able to capitalize on a stronger U.S. trading partner.
